

Particular conditionsCOMMON GENERAL CONDITIONS*1. Purpose

Should there be several, this document governs and organises the contracts for the bank products and services ("the Products and Services") agreed in this document, as indicated in the respective specific conditions covering different contractual relationships, irrespective of whether a number of these have been agreed.

If a contract with multiple holders is entered into, this document may, at the request of all the contracting parties, cover other individually owned Products and Services, stating that these may be contracted in separate documents, should the holders so wish.

2. Holder(s)

The ownership of each Product and Service is that stated by the account holders in the respective particular conditions of the contract. When the Holder is more than one individual, unless expressly agreed otherwise, it will be understood that all of them are jointly and severally liable and any of them may individually exercise all rights derived from being the Holder, including the cancellation of the contract. If joint ownership is expressly agreed, the signature and agreement of all or various of the account holders will be required in order to carry out any operation, including cancellation. Hereafter, the expression "the Holder" will cover all of them should there be more than one, unless otherwise gathered from the context.

3. Product and service price. Expenses

Fees that must be inherent to the Products and Services taken out are indicated, together with the parameters for their settlement, in the respective specific general conditions or the specific conditions under the "price of the services" heading, or similar heading. They are independent of accrued commissions and recoverable expenses for the provision of services not included within the framework of the present contract which have been specifically sought or accepted by the account holder.

When the contracting party acts as a non-consumer, he/she shall be responsible for expenses deriving from the communications related to the contracted Products and Services. In all other cases, communication expenses shall only apply when a legal regulation so allows. In particular, communication expenses may apply when the contacting party requests additional information which CaixaBank does not legally have to provide, or information is received via a means of communication different to those specified in this contract. Unless specified otherwise, communication expense amounts shall be calculated in accordance with the rates in force at the Spanish Post Office Services at any time.

Unless indicated otherwise by the holder, they give their consent for these dispatches to include commercial advertising or communications, providing that doing so does not increase the cost that is passed on 4.1. CaixaBank may initiate modifications to the general and particular conditions of the Products and Services arranged for an open-ended period via its mail to the contracting party, with a one-month advance notice before the entry into force of this modification, to the mailing address as set out in common general condition 9, or, when the contracting party does not act as a consumer, with a reasonable advance notice prior to the entry into force of this modification, via publication on branches' notice boards and on CaixaBank website or via any other medium recognized by law. Despite the above, all modifications may be applied immediately that are more favorable for the contracting party. When the Products and Services affected by the modification have the consideration of payment services, in particular in the case of demand deposits, the aforesaid advance notice period shall be two months.

In the event of disagreement, the contracting party shall have the right to terminate the contract for the specific affected service, giving notice before this date and with the debtor obligations enduring, as applicable, until their complete payment.

4.2 Modifications related to interest or exchange rates may be applied immediately and without prior notice when they are based on interest or exchange rates of reference agreed in the corresponding contract.

5. Associated deposit account

For contracting certain Products and Services, the contracting party may need to designate an associated or linked demand deposit open in CaixaBank, into which charges and payments produced by the operation of the Products and Services shall be settled. In cases such as these, a specific space shall be set aside in the particular conditions, in the understanding that the contracting of the Products and Services is not possible without making said designation and with it, the contracting party assumes the commitment of keeping an associated or linked deposit operative throughout the life period of the contracted Products and Services, with cancellation of the associated or linked deposit account being a reason to terminate the contract, except where the specific general conditions of the Products and Services expressly indicate otherwise. Commissions and expenses derived from opening and maintaining the associated or linked demand deposit account shall be those indicated in the contract for opening said account.

6. Contract term and termination6.1 Term

The specific Products and Services shall be contracted for an open-ended term, unless their respective specific general conditions specify differently.

6.2 Voluntary termination

Contracts for Products and Services arranged for an open-ended term may be unilaterally terminated by either party, with no need to express a cause. If it is "the Caixa" that initiates termination, it must give a written advance notice to the contracting party of at least two months. If the contracting party initiates it, a one-month written advance notice addressed to CaixaBank is enough. The contracting party must pay the proportional amount of the debt for accrued periodic expenses and fees stemming from the Products and Services affected by the termination. If they have been fully paid in advance, CaixaBank will reimburse the proportional part in the associated deposit. CaixaBank may charge the contracting parties all expenses stemming from the termination when the party does not act as a consumer.

For deposits, after the term ends, its balance shall be available to the holder, without accruing interest. Termination requested by the contracting party shall require the lack of an outstanding balance, where CaixaBank reserves the power to postpone the reimbursement of the resulting balance for the time necessary to charge for operations underway.

6.3 Causes for termination

Each party may terminate Products and Services contracts if the other party breaches the respective conditions governing them. Termination will involve the immediate enforceability of the entire debt that, as applicable, is owed by each party.

7. Conventional offsetting

In the case of indistinct or joint ownership, in accordance with the matters set out in article 1143 of the Civil Code, the offsetting could reach the totality of the deposit balance.

In the case of term deposits, the balance shall be deemed to have matured and be callable for the purposes of offsetting. Furthermore, this authorization is extended to the sale or realization of the securities of which they were owners in any deposit, account or securities file of CaixaBank, with the offsetting being charged to the product obtained.

In any case, the offsetting shall be suitably notified to the party concerned.
